

Jack Dickens – Barrister

Called 2023

Background:

Having completed pupillage at the Crown Prosecution Service ('CPS'), Jack joins Chambers to continue developing his criminal practice and include defence work and diversify his practice into other areas of law.

Areas of Specialisation:

Crime

Throughout his 12-month pupillage with the CPS he has gained invaluable experience in a range of Magistrates' and Crown Court work. Examples broadly.

Jack also completed many pieces of written advocacy such as providing pre-charge advice, advising reviewing lawyers on charging decisions, and advice on sentencing options available to the Court on youth matters.

Jack continues to build a practice within criminal law and accepts instructions on criminal defence and prosecution.

Regulatory

Prior to pupillage, Jack worked as a Hearings Coordinator at the Nursing and Midwifery Council. His role would involve facilitating hearings and drafting the panel's determinations. This gave Jack a unique insight into regulatory work and is something he is developing within his own practice. Jack accepts regulatory instructions.

Cases:

R v B

An all-day Magistrates' Court trial involving allegations of domestic abuse and intentional suffocation.

R v H

Sentencing at Reading Crown Court of a robbery whereby the defendant had used an imitation firearm in order to steal a car from a woman. The defendant then went on to commit a further shop theft and culminated in the defendant driving dangerously reaching speeds of 100mph before being stopped by the police.

The Court sentenced the defendant to a term of 45 months immediate imprisonment.

Education & Qualifications:

LLB (Hons) – The University of Law
Bar Practice Course – The University of Law

Interests:

Jack enjoys running and is currently training to run a half marathon.
